

GEN. M'ARTHUR DRIVES THE ENEMY

Encounters Insurgents at San Fernando.

ATTACKS THE REBELS SIX THOUSAND STRONG.

American Troops Only Numbered Four Thousand—After Five Hours the Opposing Forces Were Driven Five Miles in the Direction of Angeles—Casualties Were Few—Rain Would Not Permit the Movement Ordered For the Seventh Inst.—Calulut Captured.

Washington, Aug. 9.—[Special]—The following was received from Gen. Otis this morning: "Gen. MacArthur with four thousand men, encountered an insurgent army of six thousand, strong concentrated around San Fernando 5:15 o'clock this morning. At 10 o'clock he had driven the enemy five miles in the direction of Angeles. The casualties were few. An attack was ordered for the seventh inst., but the rain did not permit of the movement. OTIS."

Capture Town of Calulut Manila, Aug. 9.—[Special]—During the advance this morning Gen. MacArthur captured the town of Calulut. The enemy retreated in good order, but they lost heavily.

From San Fernando to Calulut the enemy stoutly opposed the American advance, and it required steady and hard fighting at times to make the Filipinos give up their ground.

Destruction of the Saturnus Manila, Aug. 9.—[Special]—Additional advices regarding the destruction of the steamer Saturnus by the insurgents have been received here.

The vessel was discovered beached by an American gunboat at San Fernando. The passengers were taken off, but the boat could not be floated. The cargo and one hundred thousand dollars in specie had been sacked.

When the gunboat left, the insurgents set fire to the Saturnus and the gunboat Yorktown bombarded San Fernando afterwards.

Casualties Number Forty.

Manila, Aug. 9.—[Special]—The American casualties in this morning's battle near San Fernando numbers forty.

MacArthur continued to drive the insurgents before him today, until he reached Sandaling, three miles from Angeles, where it is bivouacked tonight.

The advance will be continued tomorrow. The progress of our troops is slow, as the roads and fields are flooded.

FILIPINOS APPEAL TO THE POWERS

Ask Official Recognition for Their Government in the Philippines.

Manila, Aug. 9.—Aguinaldo has appealed to the powers for recognition of "Filipino independence" in a document dated from Tarlac July 27, and signed by Buenavista. It has been received by all the foreign consuls in Manila, with the request that they forward it to their respective governments.

The Filipinos use their old argument that they had conquered the sovereignty of these islands from Spain before the signing of the treaty of Paris, and therefore Spain was in no position to cede them to the United States. They argue that the possession of 7,000 Spanish prisoners, captured with their arms, fighting against the Filipinos, "is eloquent proof of the nullity of Spanish sovereignty, as when they surrendered Spain's hold was irrevocably lost." The document then says:

"Replying to the Spanish commission's requests to release the prisoners because Spain no longer has political interests in the islands, we asked for a treaty of peace and friendship between Spain and the Filipinos, whereby the prisoners would be released. But the commission refused because it would mean recognition of our independence. This is equivalent to saying that the prisoners must stay in our hands indefinitely, because their possession is our most efficacious method to adjust our account with Spain and obtain from it recognition of our independence."

The Filipinos allege that they conquered all the country except Manila, and that they co-operated in securing the latter's capitulation by surrounding it at the cost of thousands of lives. They also claim they conquered the country unassisted, except for sixty guns that Admiral Dewey gave Aguinaldo, and that Admiral Dewey and the British and Belgian consuls recognized the Filipinos' sovereignty by asking for passes to visit the country. They repeat the claim that they have letters from American consuls and generals recognizing their sovereignty and promising that the Americans would recognize their independence, "which was at the disposition of the powers."

The Filipinos attempt to make capital of the statement that Admiral Dewey had such confidence that Aguinaldo would observe and fulfill the rules of war that he gave him 100 Spanish prisoners which the American navy had captured.

Finally, the Filipinos appeal to the powers to influence Washington to bring to a termination "the unjust war which is devastating the country."

WILL PUSH THE WAR VIGOROUSLY.

Secretary of War Root Outlines the Policy of His Department. Plattburg, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The war in the Philippines is to be prosecuted with a vigor that ought to result in speedy cessation of hostilities there. Secretary of War Root, after returning from a consultation with the president Tuesday, said:

"The war in the Philippines from now on will be prosecuted with all possible energy. All the men, all the arms and all the supplies necessary to end the trouble in the islands will be furnished at the earliest possible moment. There will be 50,000 men there ready for active service at the close of the rainy season, about the last of October, and more will be sent if necessary."

STREET CAR BLOWN UP

A Strike Leader's Theory is That it is the Work of the Pinkertons.

Cleveland, Aug. 9.—[Special]—A street car was blown up at an early hour this morning, but nobody was hurt. All of the explosives under the cars were remarkably harmless and strike leaders offer the theory that they are being caused by Pinkertons, who will lose their jobs soon if there are no manifestations of violence.

THE SAN DOMINICAN TROOPS DESERTED

SENT TO ATTACK REVOLUTIONISTS AT DAJABON.

News From All Over the Island Favors the Jimenez Cause—Representatives at Philadelphia Trying to Secure Vessels to Carry Munitions of War—Brooke's Orders.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Aug. 9.—[Special]—The San Dominican troops sent to attack the revolutionists at Dajabon, the revolutionists' headquarters, deserted to the enemy when the latter's camp was reached, and not a shot was fired. The revolutionary force is growing, and news from all over the island favors the Jimenez cause.

Philadelphia, Aug. 9.—[Special]—Representatives of the San Dominican revolutionists are here trying to secure vessels to carry munitions of war to San Domingo.

Officers are watching them and they will be arrested if an attempt is made to start a filibustering expedition from this or any other United States port.

Leave For San Domingo

Havana, Aug. 9.—[Special]—Gen. Jimenez, who is expected to lead the San Dominican revolt, says that between three and four hundred men have gone from Havana to San Domingo, and that another expedition will soon start.

Washington, Aug. 9.—[Special]—Gen. Brooke has been given strict orders not to allow any filibustering expeditions to Jimenez's interests to leave Cuba.

Washington, Aug. 9.—From the character of instructions sent to Gen. Brooke it is evident President McKinley and Secretary Root have been giving serious consideration to the threatened Santo Domingo revolution. Gen. Brooke fears from the operations of Jimenez that he is really planning for an extensive filibustering expedition from Cuba. His frequent conferences with other exiles from Santo Domingo have led to this suspicion, and Gen. Brooke wired the war department for instructions.

They were sent to him by direction of the president and they are to the effect that he must prevent such an expedition at all hazards.

According to the views of the officials here—and it is evident that the president and Secretary Root are of the same opinion—the United States is just as much obliged to prevent a violation of the neutrality laws in Cuba as in the United States. Although not American territory, it is temporarily under the control of the military forces of this country, and the United States is responsible to the other nations of the world for any infraction of international law by any one while on Cuban soil.

Grass Dominions Frontier.

Port au Prince, Haiti, Aug. 9.—The revolutionary Dominican troops which assembled at Ouanaminthe have crossed the frontier and have taken possession of Dajabon. The garrison at that place retired to Fort Belair, a strategic position commanding the town. The foreign population and the Haitian consul left the place. It is considered probable that Jimenez, the leader of the revolution, will attempt to make a landing on the island shortly in order to join the revolutionary troops at Dajabon and take direction of the movement. The Haitian government is taking measures to prevent Jimenez from landing in its territory.

URGES PEACE IN KENTUCKY.

W. J. Stone Speaks on Behalf of the Louisville Ticket.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 9.—W. J. Stone of Missouri, acting chairman of the democratic national committee, has written a letter to National Committeeman Urey Woodson of Kentucky expressing the hope that Kentucky democrats will unite on the ticket nominated at Louisville.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 9.—John W. Tomlinson, chairman of the democratic national bimetallic committee, in an interview, said: "The contest in Kentucky may have an important bearing on the status of the United States senate on silver, which is now a tie. If the gold senator of Kentucky and the one in Louisiana are displaced by silver men it would give the silver forces two majorities, even should they fail to displace gold senators in states like Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, West Virginia, Michigan, Wyoming and others, whose terms expire in 1901. It is of the utmost importance that the democrats should carry the day in Kentucky."

Bryan to Talk for Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 9.—The democrats around campaign headquarters are jubilant over the news that Mr. Bryan would come to Kentucky and take up the fight for Mr. Goebel. Preparations have already begun for his reception. Mr. Bryan will be met by a reception committee, composed of leading democrats, at Louisville on his arrival, and the special will probably make that place the starting point, touching at all the principal towns in the state, and as many of the smaller ones as possible. He will be accompanied on the trip by Senator Blackburn and all of the nominees on the state ticket.

ENTHUSIASTIC FOR GOOD ROADS HERE

MISS RELLA C. HARBER SPEAKS THIS EVENING.

Movement Toward Securing One of the Twelve Wisconsin Conventions Will Be Launched at the Council Chamber Tonight—Citizens of the City Should Turn Out En masse.

The initiatory steps toward securing one of the twelve good roads conventions to be held in the Badger state will be taken by Janesville people this evening.

Miss Rella C. Harber, secretary of the State and Inter-state Good Roads and Improvement association, arrived in the city this afternoon and will, it is hoped, address a large gathering of our representative business men this evening upon the subject she so enthusiastically expounds. She represents an organization that is national in character and one that is receiving the united support of the highest public officials in the country.

The proposed good roads convention to be held in Janesville is a movement that should commend itself to every citizen interested in the welfare of our municipality. The agitation for better roads seems at last to have reached a point where something may be accomplished in the immediate vicinity. There is apparently a revival in the interest of good roads in Janesville and there is sure to be a much greater interest taken in the matter than ever before and a more effective organization of good roads workers should and no doubt will result from the influence of Miss Harber's practical talk this evening.

BELOIT UNIONS MAY COME

To Participate in the Labor Day Picnic Up the River.

An effort is being made on the part of the local Trades Council to bring the Beloit unions to this city to participate in the annual Labor Day picnic up the river, and from present indications they will be successful. William Mason and A. F. Knuth visited the Line City last week for that purpose, and will make another visit there this week, when it is expected final arrangements will be made.

Should the Beloit unions come, they will be headed by their local band, and will bring large delegations outside the unions. Mayor Victor P. Richardson will be one of the speakers. An effort is being made to secure others, but as yet no definite arrangements have been made. A prize of five dollars will be given the union making the best appearance in the parade.

WEATHER AND CROP BULLETIN

Corn Has Made Excellent Growth—Harvesting of Grains Nearly Ended.

The temperature conditions were fairly uniform throughout the week, the average ranging from 64 degrees along Lake Superior, to 72 degrees over the southwestern counties. Generally it was slightly cooler than last week and about 5 degrees cooler than the same week last year.

The distribution of rainfall was very uneven. Generous and even heavy rains occurred over the southern half of the state, while practically no rain fell in the northern portion, where the soil is becoming very dry, and crops in many localities are suffering.

Corn has made excellent growth during the week, especially in the southern counties, where the rains have been abundant. The crop in the northern section is still in good condition, although in need of rain. It is generally strong and healthy and free from smut. Harvesting of grains is practically completed.

Oats and barley are mostly secured and some threshing has been done. Oats are reported as turning out well. Spring wheat is generally a good crop. The rains in the southern and central counties have greatly benefited late potatoes, but in the northern section the crop has deteriorated to some extent on account of dry weather and blight.

The present condition of the tobacco crop is generally very good, and early plantings are being topped.

The apple crop is very light. Blackberries, plums, and small fruit plentiful, and of good quality.

Cranberries are making excellent growth and promise a large crop.

Afraid That Some Point Will Fail Him.

MAY INADVERTENTLY ADMIT SOMETHING.

Court martial resumed its secret session this morning in the examination of the fifty-ninth document of a total of four hundred papers which compose the dossier—Gen. Chanoine the only witness examined today—Next Public Session Will Probably Be Held Saturday.

Rennes, Aug. 9.—[Special]—The Dreyfus court martial resumed its secret session this morning. Today the examination of the forty-ninth document of the secret dossier began. The fifty-eighth of a total of four hundred papers which compose the dossier was finished yesterday.

Dreyfus is showing the strain of the rigid examination.

He has a haunting fear that some point will escape him and that he may inadvertently admit something which would lead to a new conviction.

General Chanoine was the only witness examined today. The court will finish with him tomorrow, and proceed to the examination of M. Paleologue of the foreign office. His examination will also be in connection with the dossier. The next public session will probably be held Saturday.

Sues Plankinton Personally.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 9.—William H. Davis, a member of the firm of Davis Bros., who had a deposit of $13,439.35 in the Plankinton bank, Tuesday brought suit to hold William Plankinton personally liable for the amount. Mr. Davis says on May 23, 1893, he was going to withdraw the deposit, but Mr. Plankinton represented that the bank was perfectly solvent and would pay all of its claims. Eight days later the bank failed. Mr. Plankinton in his answer to the suit pleads the statute of limitations, as the suit was not brought within six years. He admits all of the allegations, but says that at that time he firmly believed said bank to be solvent and to be able to pay all its creditors in full.

HOW TORNADES MAY BE TURNED.

Dr. Brady Explains the Plan Which He Has Submitted to the Government Authorities—Combination of Cannon and Lightning Rods.

Dr. Edward Francis Brady, while connected with the government weather bureau, designed a tornado turner and sent it to the authorities for approval.

"I formulated a theory," says Dr. Brady, "which I claimed is explanatory of the cause of the destructive action in tornadoes and also explanatory of the reason why tornado clouds reach the earth rather than remaining at the usual elevation maintained by clouds, and also explaining why cities and villages in the storm's path escape its fury. It is a fact well known to electricians that atmospheric electricity prefers a short route though a poor conductor to a long one through a good conductor. It is in this proved fact that lightning arresters are employed in telegraph offices. The galvanic current follows the good conductor and makes no effort for a ground connection.

"Taking these well known facts as a basis, I took the ground then and maintain it yet that electricity explained the unusual phenomena of the tornado cloud coming to the earth in opposition to gravity. The whirling motion of the particles of air in the formation of a tornado cloud develops the primal form of electricity—functional electricity—the charge becoming more and more positive as the whirling motion develops the electrical units, and, in obedience to the law governing atmospheric electricity, the attractive power of the earth draws the storm cloud to the surface. Its excess of electricity is discharged, and the cloud ascends, but, the whirling motion still continues.

DR. BRADY'S TORNADE TURNER.

1. Conducting rods. 2. Copper conducting plate. 3. Conducting wires leading to ground plates. 4. Wires leading to cannon.

ing, the cloud is charged again and again. It is drawn to the earth. Furthermore, in proof that electricity is the factor which explains the terrible destructive force of a tornado is the fact that air in motion, however great its velocity, will never produce such destructive effects as may be seen in the path of a tornado.

"The tornado guard is constructed of wood or may be built entirely of metal and raised to any desired elevation. The tornado guard, as devised by me, was constructed of a wooden framework, covered with strips of copper and lightning rods ascending to a still higher elevation from each lightning rod, and insulated wire was run to the cannon placed in front of the guard, and the electrical spark, by means of lightning arresters, would discharge the cannon. By means of the insulated wires connected with the lightning rods every rod was in the circuit. By this plan it was not necessary to expose individual lives. At all times the cannon could be protected from ordinary weather influence, and in ordinary storms the cannon could be cut out of the electrical circuits.

"The guard when built for the protection of a city, town or village should always subtend an arc of the circle embracing only the southwest quarter, as it is from this quarter the tornado almost invariably comes. A series of guards might be built, so that if the storm passed one line intact the next would dissipate it.

"The cost of construction would be very trifling compared with the security afforded. The philosophy of the action of a discharging cannon is plain. The rapid forced expansion of the air stops the whistling motion, and a straight wind robbed of its potential power for destruction is all that is left."

A Drink of Water.

Don't allow the children to drink copious drafts of water, swallowed all at once—and don't allow yourself to do it. Insist on their sipping rather than drinking the fluid. Sipping is a stimulant to the circulation. It allays thirst much more effectively than pour down the throat a large quantity of any liquid at one time.

The Muff.

When, where and how the muff originated, we do not know. Planché reproduces the figure of a lady wearing a muff from a drawing of 1588, and we believe that in England, at all events, that is the earliest date to which muffs can be traced.—London Draper.

Damage Done by Cyclone.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, Aug. 9.—A cyclone at 11 o'clock Monday morning struck La Pointe-a-Pitre, Island of Guadeloupe. The disturbance lasted until nearly 4:30 p. m. A number of houses had their roofs blown off and were flooded and a number were demolished, but no fatalities were recorded. Twenty-three flatboats and fishing boats were sunk in the harbor in addition to schooners, two small steamboats and another steamer, the Hironde, which were wrecked at other places.

Jones' Return Delayed.

St. Louis, Aug. 9.—Gov. Stone is in receipt of a letter from Senator Jones, chairman of the national democratic committee, in which the latter says he is threatened with a return of ill-health and will not leave for the United States before Oct. 1, and probably not then. The letter was written in London, and the senator said he would leave shortly for Scotland and there seek to regain his health.

The Rev. W. B. Costley, of Stockbridge, Ga., while attending to his pastoral duties at Ellenwood, that state, was attacked by cholera morbus. He says: "By chance I happened to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and I think it was the means of saving my life. It relieved me at once." For sale by People's Drug Co., corner of Main and Milwaukee streets.

Scrofula to Consumption.

Any one predisposed to Scrofula can never be healthy and vigorous. This taint in the blood naturally drifts into Consumption. Being such a deep-seated blood disease, Swift's Specific is the only known cure for Scrofula, because it is the only remedy which can reach the disease.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old. Shortly after breaking out it spread rapidly all over her body. The sores were sore and oozed off on the slightest touch, and the odor that would arise made the atmosphere of the room sickening and unbearable. The disease next attacked the eyes, and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians from the surrounding country were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent and gave it as their opinion that the case was hopeless and impossible to save the child's eyesight. It was then that I decided to try Swift's Specific. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH S. KELLEY, Kan.

Scrofula is an obstinate blood disease, and is beyond the reach of the average blood medicine. Swift's Specific is the only remedy equal to such deep-seated diseases; it goes down to the very foundation and forces out every taint. It is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no mercury, potash or other mineral substance whatever. Books mailed free by Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

Buggy Tastes are Changing

The monotonous style of vehicle of a few years ago does not find place with the up-to-date buyer of today.

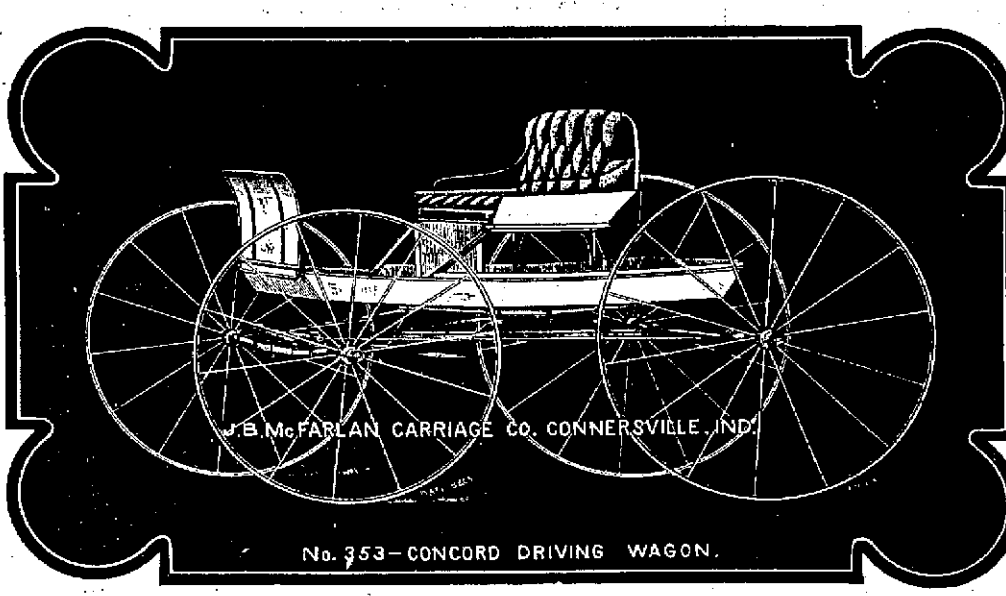

The demand for rigs of natty appearance increases each season. This year the swell turnouts combine comfort with style. The open runabout buggy with elliptic springs and rubber tires, or the top buggies with rubber tires, have a tendency to make the person who has no outfit a trifle envious. Handsome Buggies do not cost as much as you think for. Prices are reasonable and the rigs are the best.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY.

The science of medicine is advancing steadily, but one of the most valuable discoveries of recent years has just been made by Prof. Dresser, a well known Berlin authority on the use of opiates, who has manufactured a substance that seems to possess all the beneficial principles of morphine, but none of the evil consequences that make the drug a curse. Exhaustive experiments have been made and the new remedy is found to deaden sensibility without causing mental exaltation. In this latter respect it differs entirely from morphine, which acts first as a stimulant and again puts the patient to sleep.

Though morphine is not as liable as opium and laudanum to bring on nausea and headache, say the doctors, the fact remains that it does bring on these conditions if used habitually. After a dose of heroin or even after a succession of heroin injections "our patients," says Prof. Gerhardt, "awoke with a healthy appetite and a head free from pain. This I consider one of the greatest boons that can be conferred upon sufferers from certain diseases in which opiates are indispensable."

Morphine has long been a blessing to sufferers but a curse to people who contracted the habit of using it as a stimulant, and as the new remedy has its virtues without its bad qualities, its value can hardly be estimated.

At Monday evening's session the council voted to carry out the original plan and pave West Milwaukee street with vitrified brick on a concrete foundation. The position is well taken as it insures a substantial street for many years. Objections had been raised by some of the property owners, but when the pavement is down these men will doubtless be the first ones to recognize the merits. People cannot all agree, and differences of opinion will always exist. The majority of the people, however, favored the pavement, and it is the universal opinion that the improvement will be the most notable one of recent years.

Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin: If the city of Janesville gets street pavements of vitrified brick, as a result of the agitation with that end in view which is now in progress—and if care be taken in the selection of the brick and the construction of the pavements, the citizens and tax payers of Rock county's enterprising metropolis will have reason to congratulate themselves, for they will have serviceable, durable pavements, at moderate cost. Milwaukee's brick pavement experiments have succeeded so well that it is inexplicable that there is not more brick pavement laid down in Milwaukee.

The council acted wisely in ordering a milk ordinance drawn. The matter is an important one, as it deals with public health. Regulations to insure the purity of the milk supply are being adopted by nearly all cities these days, and Janesville should not be behind the others. Alderman McLean did well to bring the matter to public attention, and it is to be hoped that an ordinance that will be fair to both the milkmen and their customers will be the result.

Alderman Carpenter thinks well of a chemical engine, and his judgment is complimented by the judgment of hundreds of other citizens and tax-payers. Of course, we can't get all the good things at once, but a chemical engine is one of the good things that the future will bring us. Alderman Carpenter's suggestion is a good one.

The mayor and the aldermen know their business, and many compliments have been bestowed upon them in the last few weeks.

Dreyfus is now on trial. The people have already acquitted him, and the court martial will do the same.

A REAL PATTY CAKE.

It is the Special Delight of a Juvenile Picnic.

Nothing delights a child more than a patty cake. During the June days, when the little ones are going out on picnics, to the park and to out-of-town places, cake of some sort always enters into their luncheons, and the child who has a number of patty cakes in her basket is happy. Here is a receipt for patty cakes which are both plain and good: Cream together one cupful of butter, two cupfuls of sugar and one egg; grate in a saltspoonful of nutmeg; when these ingredients are properly blended, add three-fourths of a cup of milk; sift two cupfuls of flour in a bowl; add to it two heaping spoonfuls of baking powder; stir the powder well through the flour, and then add it to the other ingredients and stir until the mixture is as smooth as cream. Butter a patty pan, fill it with the cake batter, and bake it in a quick oven just to test it. If it is all right, bake the other cakes at once. If the batter is not stiff enough, add a little more flour. Make a light frosting for these cakes by beating the white of an egg to a stiff froth, and stirring in it four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. When the cakes are a nice brown remove them from the oven and place them on a folded napkin; before they are quite cold spread the frosting over them with a thin bladed knife.

TAKES A HIGH PLACE

Stands Well in the Estimation of the People.

Attention is Naturally Excited When Anything is Praised by People Whom We Know.

A thing that stands high in the estimation of the public, and which is especially recommended by Janesville people; naturally excites our attention more than if our own people did not praise the article. Such a thing is going on right here in this city every day. People are praising Morrow's Kid-ne-olds because they cure. There is no deception, no humbug, they do positively cure, and we furnish the evidence. Mrs. James Close, 8 North street, says: "I have been troubled with kidney and liver complaint and constipation for a long time. I had severe pains across the small of my back in the region of my kidneys. I was so nervous I could not sleep. My liver was torpid and I suffered from indigestion and had such distressing pains in my stomach. I used different kinds of kidney remedies but did not experience much relief, until I commenced to take Morrow's Kid-ne-olds and Liver-Lax. These grand remedies relieved me of all my former troubles."

Morrow's Kid-ne-olds are not pills, but yellow tablets, and sell at fifty cents a box at all drug stores and at The People's Drug Store.
Mailed on receipt of price. Manufactured by John Morrow & Co., chemists, Springfield Ohio.

WITH THE HUMORIST.

"The arrival of Admiral Dewey is expected to boom things in the bunting business."

"Yes; things were booming when Dewey went to the Philippines, too."—Chicago Post.

"How did the jury stand at first?" asked a curious outsider.

"B'Jarge," replied one of the jurors, "th' eleven of us stood on that contrairy brute of a wan till he gave in!"—Chicago Tribune.

"There now, just listen to this," the telephone exclaimed, "a very wealthy man says the way to get rich is not to talk during business hours."

"Huh," growled the phonograph, "that shows how little he knows about business."—Chicago Record.

He—I wonder why it is that men's pockets are so easy to get at, while women's are so difficult?

She—Oh, that's easily explained. A man has no business with a woman's pocket, but a woman has with a man's.

DRUGGISTS HOLD KEYS TO THE CITY

THE DAY WAS REPLETE WITH AMUSEMENTS.

Ball Game This Morning Between the Local Druggists and Traveling Men Results in a Victory For the Former—Party Tonight is Strictly Private—Program For Tomorrow.

The druggists now hold the key to the city and that they will make the best use of it for the remainder of the week goes without saying.

The Wisconsin Pharmaceutical Travelers' association started the amusement end of the meeting with a rush last night and the fun has just commenced. At about 7:45 p. m. they formed in front of the Grand hotel and headed by the kazoo band, paraded to the East Side Odd Fellows hall where the entertainment was to take place. They carried banners at intervals in the line bearing such inscriptions as "Carter was not invited," "Don't Throw Our Cards in the Waste Basket," "We are the Commercial Barometers," and many others of a similar nature, all of which were clever.

It Was Replete With Fun

The hall was well filled with the drug dispensers and their families and the program which had been provided was replete with fun. The talent was entirely amateur and selected from the members of the association, which lent an additional interest to the exercises. In the absence of President W. A. Sallade, of Fond du Lac, Vice President J. W. Curtis, of Madison, presided as master of ceremonies. He made a few bright remarks, after which he read a message of welcome from the president. He was followed by Fred Mitchell, of Milwaukee, who made a speech interspersed with humorous local hits which were greatly enjoyed. Smith's orchestra delighted the audience with a selection, after which W. W. Mandeville, of Milwaukee, gave a broomstick dance.

Miss Beach Pleased Audience

Miss May Beach, of Fort Atkinson, recited "The Drummer," and was compelled to respond to an encore, with "When Pops Sings."

L. A. Lange of Milwaukee, gave a good Norwegian dialect story, and was followed by Mrs. Charles Geisse of Fond du Lac, who sweetly sang "My Dream of You," which was encored and responded to. Mrs. Charles F. Yates played her accompaniments.

E. A. Oakes then gave a clever sand dance, and Harry Austin followed with character impersonations. His renditions of "The Coming Girl" and "The Tramp," were great.

A Practical Demonstration

The program wound up with a practical demonstration of the instantaneous results of a new hair grower, by Ed Mallory of Chicago. The result was very startling and exceedingly funny.

Dancing followed and continued until a late hour to the music of Smith's orchestra.

This morning the Ladies' Auxiliary took the visiting ladies for a boat ride up the river on the steamer Columbia. They returned about noon and reported a most enjoyable trip.

The party this evening at Odd Fellows hall is strictly private, and is tendered by the State Auxiliary society to the visiting druggists and traveling men. No one will be admitted without tickets of invitation. The exercises will commence promptly at 8 o'clock.

The ball game this morning between the local druggists and the traveling drug men was won by the former's team by a score of 5 to 4. The defeat of the salesmen would no doubt have been more complete but for the fact that they quit the game before the last half of the ninth inning.

FROM MADISON VIA THE RIVER

C. B. Montgomery and A. J. Buehler Arrived Yesterday.

C. B. Montgomery and A. J. Buehler of Madison, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon via Rock river. They left the Capital City, Sunday morning and are making a trip by boat to Davenport, Iowa. They carry a complete but compact camping outfit and pitch their tent wherever night overtakes them.

Last night, however, they could not resist the temptation to spend the evening in this city so they left their outfit with Captain Buchholz for safe keeping and registered at the Myers house. They resumed their trip this morning.

PIPES AND PLAIDS OF BONNY SCOTCH

DAY OF GAMES BRINGS THEM TO THE FRONT.

The Ball Was Started Last Night When a Tour of the City Was Made By the "Doodle Sack" Players—Annual Games of the Rock County Caledonian Society.

"And the sound of the bagpipe is heard in the land." It has come to be a part of the annual Scottish games in this city and no gathering of the clans would be complete without the inspiring notes of the pipes of Scotland. The ball was started rolling last night when a private street car in charge of Colin O. MacLean, and bearing a load of the staunchest of Scots made the rounds of the city.

Their coming was heralded for many blocks by two "doodle sack" players, who were aboard in order that all might know that the date of the fourteenth annual games of the Rock County Caledonian society had arrived.

At the fair grounds this afternoon the crowds gathered in goodly numbers to watch the different contests, and the usual enthusiasm of both spectators and contestants prevailed.

There were tugs of war for the largest purses ever offered in the state, $30.00 for first prize and $15.00 for second prize. Reinholdt Schott and Jack Carkeek wrestled for a purse of $100.00, all of which was to go to the winner. Sheriff Appleby was the referee and gave excellent satisfaction. There was also the 200 yard race for boys under 15 years; putting the 16-pound stone; barrel race; 100 yard race, handicap; running broad jump; vaulting with pole; hurdle race, 220 yards; running high jump; running hop, step and jump; bicycle race; one mile, handicap, open to Rock county riders; throwing 16 pound hammer; throwing discus; hit and kick; 600 yard running race for ponies under fourteen hands, riders to be under 16 years of age; one mile bicycle race for members of the society only, and one mile bicycle race for ladies 18 years of age or over.

All of the prizes with the exception of the mile open bicycle race and the mile race for members of the society were cash and were very liberal. In addition to the athletic contests there was all kinds of Scotch dancing including the Highland fling, sailors' hornpipe and shean rews.

Carkeek Wins Three Falls

Carkeek won the first fall in the wrestling match but it took him four minutes and thirty-five seconds to down the Watertown lad.

Carkeek won the second fall in nine minutes and thirty seconds.

J. KNOX TAYLOR HERE TO INSPECT SITES

ARRIVED IN THE CITY FROM EAU CLAIRE.

Open House in the Council Chamber This Afternoon to Hear Arguments in Favor of the Different Locations—Speeches Made Favoring East and West Sides.

J. Knox Taylor, the supervising architect of the treasury department at Washington, D. C., arrived in the city from Eau Claire early this morning to inspect the several sites offered for the new post office building.

He was provided with several charts of the city to assist him in his work of deciding on a location which will be contiguous to the center of population of the city and the treasury department will depend upon his judgment in the matter.

At 1:30 p. m. he held open house in the council chamber to hear arguments in favor of the different sites offered. The meeting was attended by the representative business men of both the east and west sides of the river and speeches were made covering the entire situation.

There are in all ten sites offered but it is rumored that the choice lies between two of them, the property on the south east corner of East Milwaukee and South Bluff streets and that on the south-east corner of North Jackson and Wall streets.

Among those who spoke in favor of the west side location were Capt. Pliny Norcross and W. T. Van Kirk, while the advantages of the site offered by the east side were set forth by Edwin F. Carpenter, Geo. G. Sutherland, L. B. Carle and others.

Stanley B. Smith was made chairman of the meeting.

The claims of the west side were presented in statistical form by Captain Norcross. He produced figures showing the population basis to be 7 to 5 in favor of the west side. The voting strength he declared to be 16 to 10 in favor of the west side. In retail lines of business and in manufacturing, he claimed, there was a like preponderance.

George G. Sutherland summed up the case for the east side, citing the fact that 75 per cent of the money order business of the city was done on the east side, that 68 per cent of the stamp sales were to east siders, and that much more than half of the box rent came from the east side.

THE EXPOSURE OF LORD STANSFORD

BY
BARR.

[Copyright, 1899, by Robert Barr.]
The large mansion of Louis Heckle, millionaire and dealer in gold mines, was illuminated from top to bottom. Carriages were arriving and departing, and guests were hurrying up the carpeted stair after passing under the canopy that stretched from the doorway to the edge of the street. A crowd of on-lookers stood on the pavement watching the arrival of ladies so charmingly attired. Lord Stansford came alone in a hansom, and he walked quickly across the bit of carpet stretched to the doorway, and then more leisurely up the broad stair. He was an athletic young fellow of 36 or thereabouts. The moment he entered the large reception room his eyes wandered searchingly over the gallant company, apparently looking for some one whom he could not find. He passed into a further room, and through that into a third, and there his searching gaze met the stare of Billy Heckle. Heckle was a young man of about the same age as Lord Stansford, and he also was seemingly on the outlook for some one among the arriving guests. The moment he saw Lord Stansford a slight frown gathered upon his brow, and he moved among the throng toward the spot where the other stood. Stansford saw him coming, and did not seem to be so pleased as might have been expected, but he made no motion to avoid the young man, who accosted him without salutation.

"Look here," said Heckle gruffly. "I want a word with you."

"Very well," answered Stansford in a low voice. "So long as you speak in tones no one else can hear I am willing to listen."

"You will listen whether or no," replied the other, who nevertheless took the hint and subdued his voice. "I have met you on various occasions lately, and I want to give you a word of warning. You seem to be very devoted to Miss Linderham; so perhaps you do not know she is engaged to me."

"I have heard it so stated," said Lord Stansford, "but I have found some difficulty in believing the statement."

"Now, see here!" cried the hony young man. "I want none of your cheek, and I give you fair warning that if you pay any more attention to the young lady I shall expose you in public. I mean what I say, and I am not going to stand any of your nonsense."

Lord Stansford's face grew pale, and he glanced about him to see if by chance any one had overheard the remark. He seemed about to resent it, but finally gained control over himself and said:

"We are in your father's house, Mr. Heckle, and I suppose it is quite safe to address a remark like that to me."

"I know it's quite safe—anywhere," replied Heckle. "You've got the straight tip from me; now see you pay attention to it."

Heckle turned away, and Lord Stansford, after standing there for a moment, wandered back to the middle room. The conversation had taken place somewhat near a heavily curtained window, and the two men stood slightly apart from the other guests. When they left the spot, the curtains were drawn gently apart, and a tall, very handsome young lady stepped from between them. She watched Lord Stansford's retreat for a moment, and then made as though she would follow him, but one of her admirers came forward to claim her for the first dance. "Music has just begun in the ballroom," he said. She placed her hand on the arm of her partner and went out with him.

When the dance was over, she was amazed to see Lord Stansford still in the room. She had expected him to leave when the son of his host spoke so insultingly to him, but the young man had not departed. He appeared to be enjoying himself immensely and danced through every dance with the utmost devotion, which rather put to shame many of the young men who lounged against the walls. Never once, however, did he come near Miss Linderham until the evening was well on, and then he passed her by accident. She touched him on the arm with her fan, and he looked quickly around.

"Oh, how do you do, Miss Linderham?" he said.

"Why have you ignored me all the evening?" she asked, looking at him with sparkling eyes.

"I haven't ignored you," he replied, with some embarrassment. "I did not know you were here."

"Oh, that is worse than ignoring," replied Miss Linderham, with a laugh. "But now that you know I am here I wish you to take me into the garden. It is becoming insufferably hot in here."

"Yes," said the young man, getting red in the face, "it is warm."

The girl could not help noticing his reluctance, but nevertheless she took his arm, and they passed through several rooms to the terrace which faced the garden. Lord Stansford's anxious eyes again seemed to search the rooms through which they passed, and again, on encountering those of Billy Heckle, Miss Linderham's escort shivered slightly as he passed on. The girl wondered what mystery was at the bottom of all this, and with feminine curiosity resolved to find out, even if she had to ask Lord Stansford himself. They entered along one of the walks until they reached a seat far from the house. The music floated out to them through the open windows, faint in the distance. Miss Linderham sat down and motioned Lord Stansford to sit beside her. "Now," she said, turning her handsome face full upon him, "why have you avoided me all the evening?"

"I haven't avoided you," he said. "But, tut, tut: you mustn't contradict a lady, you know. I want the reason, the real reason and no excuses."

Before the young man could reply Billy Heckle, his face flushed with wine or anger, or perhaps both, strode down the path and confronted them.

"I gave you your warning," he cried. Lord Stansford sprang to his feet; Miss Linderham arose also and looked in some alarm from one young man to the other.

"Stop a moment, Heckle! Don't say a word, and I will meet you where you like afterward," hurriedly put in his lordship.

"Afterward is no good to me," answered Heckle. "I gave you the tip and you haven't followed it."

"I beg you to remember," said Stansford, in a low voice with a tremor in it, "there is a lady present."

Miss Linderham turned to go. "Stop a moment!" cried Heckle. "Do you know who this man is?"

Miss Linderham stopped, but did not answer.

"I'll tell you who he is. He is a hired guest. My father pays 5 guineas for his presence here tonight, and every place you have met him he has been there on hire. That's the kind of man Lord Stansford is. I told you I should expose you. Now I am going to tell the others."

Lord Stansford's face was as white as paper. His teeth were clinched, and,

"Perhaps you do not know she is engaged to me."

taking one quick step forward, he smote Heckle fair between the two eyes and felled him to the ground.

"You can!" he cried. "Get up or I shall kick you and hate myself forever after for doing it."

Young Heckle picked himself up, cursing under his breath.

"I'll settle with you, my man," he said. "I'll get a policeman. You'll spend the remainder of this night in the cells."

"I shall do nothing of the sort," answered Lord Stansford, catching him by both wrists with an iron grasp. "Now, pay attention to me, Billy Heckle. You feel my grip on your wrist. You felt my blow in your face, didn't you? Now you go into the house by whatever back entrance there is, go to your room, wash the blood off your face, and stay there; otherwise I'll break both of your wrists as you stand here!" And he gave the wrists a wrench that made the other vince, big and bulky as he was.

"I promise," said Heckle.

"Very well. See that you keep your promise."

Young Heckle slunk away, and Lord Stansford turned to Miss Linderham, who stood looking on, speechless with horror and surprise.

"What a brute you are!" she said, with a quiver in her under lip.

"Yes," he replied quietly. "Most of us men are brutes when you take a little of the varnish off. Won't you sit down, Miss Linderham? There is no need now to reply to the question you asked me. The incident you have witnessed and what you have heard have been its answer."

The young lady did not sit down. She stood looking at him, her eyes softening a trifle.

"It is true, then?" she said.

"Is what true?"

"That you are here as a hired guest?"

"Yes, it is true."

"Then why did you knock him down if it was the truth?"

"Because he spoke the truth before you."

"I hope, Lord Stansford, you don't mean to imply that I am in any way responsible for your ruffianism?"

"You are, and in more than one sense of the word. That young fellow threatened me when I came here tonight, knowing that I was his father's hired guest. I do not wish exposure, and so I avoided you. You spoke to me and asked me to bring you out here. I came, knowing that if Heckle saw me he would carry out his threat. He has carried it out, and I have had the pleasure of knocking him down."

Miss Linderham sank upon the seat and once more motioned with her fan for him to take the place beside her.

"Then you receive 5 guineas a night for appearing at the different places where I have met you?"

"As a matter of fact," said Stansford, "I get only 2 guineas. I suppose the other 3, if such is the price paid, goes to my employers."

"I thought Mr. Heckle was your employer tonight?"

"I mean to the company who let me out, if I make myself clear—Spink & Co.; telephone 100,803. If you should ever want an eligible guest for any entertainment you give, and men are scarce, you have only to telephone them, and they will send me to you."

"Oh, I see!" said Miss Linderham, tapping with her fan upon her knee.

"It is only justice to my fellow employees," continued Lord Stansford, "to say that I believe they are all eligible young men, but many of them may be had for a guinea. The charge in my case is higher, as I have a title. I have tried to flatter myself that it was my polished, dignified manner that won me the extra remuneration, but after your exclamation of my brutality tonight I am afraid I must fall back on my title."

We members of the aristocracy come high, you know."

There was silence between them for a few moments, and then the girl looked up at him and said:

"Aren't you ashamed of your profession, Lord Stansford?"

"Yes," replied Lord Stansford, "I am."

"Then why do you follow it?"

"Why does a man sweep a street crossing? Lack of money. One must have money, you know, to get along in this world, and I, alas, have none. I had a little once; I wanted to make it more, so gambled—and lost; I laid low for a couple of years and saw none of my old acquaintances; but it was no use—there was nothing I could turn my hand to. This profession, as you call it, led me back into my old set again. It is true that many of the houses I frequented before my disaster overtook me do not hire guests. I am more in demand by the new rich, like Heckle here, who, with his precious little son, does not know how to treat a guest, even when that guest is hired."

"But I should think," said Miss Linderham, "that a man like you would go to South Africa or Australia, where there are great things to be done. I imagine, from the insight I have had into your character, you would make a good fighter. Why don't you go where fighting is appreciated and where they do not call a policeman?"

"I have often thought of it, Miss Linderham; but, you see, to secure an appointment one needs to have a certain amount of influence and be able to pass examinations. I can't pass an examination in anything. I have quarreled with all my people, and have no influence. To tell you the truth, I am saving up money now in the hope of being able to buy an outfit to go to the Cape."

"You would much rather be in London, though, I suppose?"

"Yes, if I had a reasonably good income."

"Are you open to a fair offer?"

"What do you mean by a fair offer?"

"I mean, would you entertain a proposal in your present line of business for a remuneration?"

The young man sat silent for a few moments and did not look at his companion. When he spoke, there was a shade of resentment in his voice.

"I thought you saw, Miss Linderham, that I was not very proud of my present occupation."

"Not but, as you said, a man will do anything for money."

"I beg your pardon for again contradicting you, but I never said anything of the sort."

"I thought you did when you were speaking of the crossing sweeping. But never mind. I know a lady who has plenty of money. She is an artist—at least she thinks she is one, and wishes to devote her life to art. She is continually pestered by offers of marriage, and she knows those offers come to her largely because of her money. Now, this lady wishes to marry a man, and will settle upon him £2,000 a year. Would you be willing to accept that offer if I got you an introduction?"

"It would depend very much on the lady," said Stansford.

"Oh, no, it wouldn't, for you would have nothing whatever to do with her except that you would be her hired husband! She wants to devote herself to painting, not to you, don't you understand? And so long as you did not trouble her you could enjoy your £2,000 a year. You perhaps might have to appear at some of the receptions she would give, and I have no doubt she would add 5 guineas an evening for your presence. That would be an extra, you know."

There was a long silence between them after Maggie Linderham ceased speaking. The young man kicked the gravel with his toes, and his eyes were bent upon the path before him. "He is thinking it over," said Miss Linderham to herself. At last Lord Stansford looked up, with a sigh.

"Did you see the late scuffle between the unfortunate Heckle and myself?"

"Did I see it?" she asked. "How could I help seeing it?"

"Ah, then, did you notice that when he was down I helped him up?"

"Yes, and threatened to break his wrists when you got him up."

"Quite so. I should have done it, too, if he had not promised. But what I wanted to call your attention to was the fact that he was standing up when I struck him, and I want also to impress upon you the other fact—that I did not hit him when he was down. Did you notice that?"

"Of course I noticed it. No man would hit another when he was down."

"I am very glad, Miss Linderham, that you recognize it as a code of honor with us men, brutes as we are. Don't you think a woman should be equally generous?"

"Certainly, but I don't see what you mean."

"I mean this, Miss Linderham—that your offer is hitting me when I'm down."

"Oh!" exclaimed Miss Linderham, in dismay. "I'm sure I beg your pardon. I did not look at it in that light."

"Oh, it doesn't matter very much!" said Stansford, rising. "It's all included in the 5 guineas, but I'm pleased to think I have some self respect left and that I can refuse your lady and will not become a hired husband at £2,000 a year. May I see you back to the house, Miss Linderham? As you are well aware, I have duties toward other guests who are not hired, and it is a point of honor with me to earn my money. I wouldn't like a complaint to reach the ears of Spink & Co."

Miss Linderham rose and placed her hand within his arm.

"Telephone—what number?" she asked.

"Telephone 100,803," he answered. "I am sorry the firm did not provide me with some of their cards when I was at the office this afternoon."

"It doesn't matter," said Miss Linderham. "I will remember." And they entered the house together.

Next day, at a large studio in Kensington, none of the friends who had met Miss Linderham at the ball the evening before would have recognized the girl; not but that she was as pretty as ever, perhaps a little prettier, with her long white pinafore and her pretty fingers discolored by the crayons she was using. She was trying to sketch out on the canvas before her the figure of a man, striking out from the shoulder, and she did not seem to have much success with her drawing, perhaps because her mind was preoccupied. She would sit for a long time staring at the canvas and then jump up and put in lines which did not appear to bring the rough sketch any nearer perfection.

The room was large, with a good north window, and scattered about were the numberless objects that go to the confusing make up of an artist's workshop. At last Miss Linderham threw down the crayon, went to the end of the room where a telephone hung and rang the bell.

"Give me," she said, "100,803."

After a few moments of waiting a voice came.

"Is that Spink & Co.?" she asked.

"Yes, madame," was the reply.

"You have in your employ Lord Stansford, I think?"

"Yes, madame."

"Is he engaged for this afternoon?"

"No, madame."

"Well, send him to Miss Linderham, 2044 Cromwell road, South Kensington."

The man at the other end wrote the address and then asked:

"At what hour, madame?"

"I want him from 4 till 6 o'clock."

"Now," said Miss Linderham, with a sigh of relief, "I can have a model who will strike the right attitude. It is so difficult to draw from memory."

The reason why so many women fail as artists as well as in many other professions may be because they pay so much attention to their own dress. It is an astonishing fact to record that Miss Linderham sent out for a French hairdresser, who was a most expensive man, and whom she generally called in only when some very important function was about to take place.

"I want you," she said, "to dress my hair in an artistic way and yet in a manner that will seem as if no particular trouble had been taken with it. Do you understand me?"

"Ah, perfectly, mademoiselle," said the polite Frenchman. "You shall be so fascinating, mademoiselle, that—"

"Yes," said Miss Linderham, "that is what I want."

At 3 o'clock she had on a dainty gown. The sleeves were turned up as if she were ready for the most serious work. The spotless pinafore which covered this dress had the most fetching little frill around it. All in all, it was doubtful if any studio in London, even one belonging to the most celebrated painter, had in it as pretty a picture as Miss Maggie Linderham was that afternoon. At 3 o'clock there came a ring at the telephone, and when Miss Linderham answered the call the voice which she had heard before said:

"I am very sorry to disappoint you, madame, but Lord Stansford resigned this afternoon. We could send you another man if you liked to have him."

"No, no!" cried Miss Linderham, and the man at the other end of the telephone actually thought she was weeping.

"No, I don't want any one else. It doesn't really matter."

"The other man," replied the voice, "would be only 2 guineas, and it was 5 for Lord Stansford. We could send you a man for a guinea, although we don't recommend him."

"No," said Miss Linderham. "I don't want anybody. I am glad Lord Stansford is not coming, as the little party I proposed to give has been postponed."

"Ah, then, when it comes off, madame, I hope—"

The Gaze

EXPLORING THE AMAZON VALLEY

Rubber the Only Important
Product of the Country.
Houses Built on Piles.
Strange Animals.

By C. T. BAXTER.

The navy department has made public the report recently received from Commander C. C. Todd of the "Wilmington" relating to the cruise of that vessel up the Amazon. The "Wilmington" proceeded 2,300 miles up the river, investigating the topography and natural resources of the country; made a collection of animals for the zoological park in Washington and obtained a series of photographs of the towns along the river, the natives and the scenery.

The valley of the Amazon is an immense area of low lying land, interspersed with innumerable waterways, which, during the rainy season, from May to December, overflow almost all of the intervening country. The towns, of which there are few of large population, are built on the higher bluffs along the river. At certain points where the country is above the average high water level there are small plantations where cocoa, grain and vegetables are grown for local consumption. Nearly all of the native houses are built upon piles to raise them above the flood level.

This valley, strange as it may seem, does not produce foodstuffs sufficient for the support of the people. The foreign residents of all the large towns rely largely on canned goods and other imported foods.

The climate was found to be oppressive and humid. The annual range of the thermometer is from 72 to 92 degrees, and the whole valley is the seat of tropic malaria, exceedingly dangerous to unacclimated visitors.

The most important city along the river above Para is Manaus, close to the junction of the Rio Negro and the Amazon. This is the seat of government of the state of Amazon and has a population of between 30,000 and 40,000. It is the distributing point for the immense trade of the Amazon basin and seems destined to grow in commercial importance.

HOME ON THE AMAZON.

It is here that the ocean going steamers transship their cargoes to the smaller river boats, by which they are distributed along the Madeira, Purus, Juruá, Japara and Rio Negro. The town does an important trade in rubber, cocoa and dyestuffs from the interior and is looked upon by Commander Todd as an important post for our consular service in view of the opening for American imports.

The difficulty in getting coal suggested that this was a good opening for American enterprise. Pocahontas coal brings $10 a ton laid down at Manaus. Farther up the river Napo, beyond Iquitos, it is said there are gold deposits, which are worked by the natives. No one else ever has worked them, and their extent practically is speculative. It is said that there are large deposits of coal on the eastern slope of the cordilleras, but at present no attempt is made to work them.

Commander Todd says that the only product of importance in the whole valley of the Amazon is rubber, and the status of this industry is a serious problem. All of the river towns are depopulated at certain seasons, when the inhabitants go in their canoes to the network of tributary streams to collect the rubber from the wild trees. No systematic attempt is made at cultivating the rubber trees, and the methods employed by the Indians kill all the trees operated on each season.

There is a comforting belief among the workers that the supply of rubber is inexhaustible and that the trees cover the whole of the Amazon valley. The officers of the "Wilmington" learned enough on the subject to feel sure that there are no immense forests of rubber trees and that they grow singly or in small groups close along the banks of the streams. The trees closest to the water are being rapidly destroyed, and how far inland they may be found no one knows.

Commander Todd suggests that it would be the part of prudence for the governments of the various states in the Amazon valley to take measures for preserving the forests and cultivating the trees in plantations, in order to guard against the serious results which would follow a sudden collapse of this great industry.

The animals obtained by the "Wilmington" for the zoo include a two toed sloth, a peccary, three agoutis or small ground hogs, a South American tapir, a harpy eagle, one coati, one tiger cat, a macaw, two death's head monkeys, one night monkey, one howling monkey, two macaque monkeys and a number of parrots. Several of the animals either died or escaped on the trip down the river. The remainder have been shipped to Washington.
